

ACHMM is a national nonprofit organization of over 8,000 professionals that provides information, networking, and most importantly education to their membership. Established in 1986, ACHMM has 66 active chapters located in 40 states. The main objectives of the organization are to:

- provide credential recognition to those professionals engaged in the management and engineering control of hazardous materials who have attained the required level of education, experience and competence,
- foster continued professional development of Certified Hazardous Materials Managers through continuing education, peer group interaction and technological simulation,
- facilitate the transfer of knowledge and experience among professionals and organizations vitally concerned with hazardous materials management and;
- provide government, industry and academia with a mechanism for identifying hazardous materials management professionals who have fulfilled the requirements for certification by a professional peer group.
